Executive Education Ranking 2020

- EADA ranked number 1 in the world for percentage of international students
- The three Spanish business schools listed in the ranking are based in the city of Barcelona

EADA Business School establishes itself in the top 50 for executive training

Barcelona, 11th May 2020. EADA Business School has secured its place among the best-known business schools in the world in the Executive Education 2020 ranking, which is published by the prestigious Financial Times, at number 43.

The ranking was compiled from data collected from the custom programmes, which are tailored to the needs of corporate customers, and the open programmes, respectively. The FT ranking evaluates various aspects such as the faculty, teaching methods, diversity of participants and facilities, among others. This year EADA Business School has been ranked number 1 in the world for its percentage of international students. According to Pau Roig, director of Corporate Relations at EADA Business School, “the internationalisation of our programmes has placed us in an excellent position in terms of the diversity of our international participants.”

With three schools in the world’s top 50, Barcelona reaffirms its global strength as a cluster of management training, not only receiving global recognition for training in senior management but also in the corporate world.

EADA Business School Barcelona was founded in 1957 by a group of entrepreneurs and professionals as an ideologically and economically independent institution. As well as appearing in the international rankings of well-known publications such as the Financial Times or The Economist, it holds the EQUIS accreditation from the EFMD (European Foundation for Management Development) and the AMBA which recognises the quality of its MBA programmes.
